Offense to Others - Joel
Feinberg 1988-01-07
The second volume in Joel Feinberg's series The Moral Limits of the Criminal Law, Offense to Others focuses on the "offense principle," which maintains that preventing shock, disgust, or revulsion is always a morally relevant reason for legal prohibitions.

Feinberg clarifies the concept of an "offended mental state" and further contrasts the concept of offense with harm.
He also considers the law of nuisance as a model for statutes creating "morals offenses," showing its inadequacy as a model for understanding "profound offenses," and discusses such issues as obscene words and social policy, pornography and the Constitution, and the differences between minor and profound offenses.

Muslims in 21st Century

Europe - Anna Triandafyllidou, 2010-04-05

Muslims in 21st Century Europe explores the interaction between native majorities and Muslim minorities in various European countries with a view to highlighting different paths of integration of immigrant and native Muslims. Starting with a critical overview of the institutionalisation of Islam in Europe and a discussion on the nature of Muslimophobia as a social phenomenon, this book shows how socio-economic, institutional and political parameters set the frame for Muslim integration in Europe. Britain, France, Germany, the Netherlands, and Sweden are selected as case studies among the 'old' migration hosts. Italy, Spain and Greece are included to highlight the issues arising and the policies adopted in southern Europe to accommodate Muslim claims and needs. The book highlights the internal diversity of both minority and majority populations, and analyses critically the political and institutional responses to the presence of Muslims.

Islam and Public Controversy in Europe - Nilüfer Göle 2016-05-06

The public visibility of Islam is becoming increasingly controversial throughout European countries. With case studies drawn from France, Germany, Italy, Spain and the UK, this book examines a range of public issues, including mosque construction, ritual slaughter, Sharia councils and burqa bans, addressing the question of 'Islamic difference' in public life outside the confines of established normative discourses that privilege freedom of religion, minority rights or multiculturalism. Acknowledging the creative role of dissent, it explores the manner in which public controversies unsettle the religious-secular divide and reshape European norms in the domains of aesthetics, individual freedom, animal rights and law. Developing an innovative conceptual framework and elaborating the notion of controversy as a methodological tool, Islam and Public Controversy in Europe draws our attention to the processes of interaction, confrontation and mutual transformation, thereby opening up a new horizon for rethinking difference and pluralism in Europe. As such, it will appeal to scholars across the social sciences with interests in religion, integration, cultural difference and the public sphere.

Tutto quello che non vi hanno mai detto sull'immigrazione - Gianpiero

Dalla Zuanna

2016-04-21T00:00:00+02:00

Numeri, dati, fatti per raccontare con un taglio pragmatico e con una prospettiva inedita il più grandioso mutamento dell'Italia di questi anni.

L'Italia è diventata nel breve giro di un paio di generazioni da paese di emigrazione sostanzialmente monoculturale a grande porto di mare. Vivono oggi dentro i nostri confini cinque milioni di stranieri e l'immigrazione è da anni al centro del dibattito pubblico e dello scontro politico. Spesso però se ne discute senza tener conto dei dati di fatto: se in un luogo non ci sono risorse sufficienti per permettere agli uomini di soddisfare le loro necessità e in un altro luogo le opportunità sono sovrabbondanti rispetto agli uomini, un gruppo di abitanti del luogo di partenza si trasferirà inevitabilmente nel luogo d'arrivo. È dunque impensabile che il flusso dei migranti si interrompa. Peraltro, la struttura demografica dei paesi occidentali rende necessario l'apporto degli stranieri: nei prossimi vent'anni, per mantenere costante la popolazione in età lavorativa (20-64), ogni anno dovranno entrare in Italia - a saldo - 325 mila potenziali lavoratori, un numero vicino a quelli entrati nel ventennio precedente. Altrimenti, nel giro di appena 20 anni i potenziali lavoratori calerebbero da 36 a 29 milioni, a mano a mano che i baby-boomers andranno in pensione. Diminuirebbero anche i giovani (da 11,2 a 9,7 milioni), mentre gli anziani - in ogni caso - sono destinati ad aumentare in modo inarrestabile. Il libro offre dati aggiornatissimi sui flussi migratori e sul loro contributo reale allo sviluppo economico, culturale e sociale del Paese, senza eludere nessuno dei temi scottanti degli ultimi mesi: l'aumento esponenziale dei richiedenti asilo, l'impatto della crisi sulle migrazioni, il contributo degli stranieri all'economia italiana, i problemi di criminalità, l'integrazione fra le diverse culture e religioni. Perché esiste un modello italiano alle immigrazioni: è necessario riconoscerlo per tracciare con sapienza le politiche del futuro.

La spirale del sottosviluppo - Stefano Allievi

L'epidemia di Covid-19 ha assestato un altro duro colpo al nostro paese. Bisogna affrontare con coraggio i problemi strutturali che affliggono l'Italia. L'epidemia di Covid-19 ha assestato un altro duro colpo al nostro paese. Bisogna affrontare con coraggio i problemi strutturali che affliggono l'Italia. Un pamphlet che mette in evidenza l'inadeguatezza del nostro mercato del lavoro, i ritardi del sistema formativo, il paradosso di un paese che ignora le decine di migliaia di ragazzi costretti a emigrare ogni anno e continua a non gestire (e forse a non comprendere) l'immigrazione. An Imaginary Racism - Pascal Bruckner 2018-11-26 'Islamophobia' is a term that has existed since the nineteenth century. But in recent decades, argues Pascal Bruckner in his controversial new book, it has become a weapon used to silence criticism of Islam. The term allows those who brandish it in the name of Islam to 'freeze' the latter, making reform difficult. Whereas Christianity and Judaism have been rejuvenated over the centuries by external criticism, Islam has been shielded from critical examination and has remained impervious to change. This tendency is exacerbated by the hypocrisy of those Western defenders of Islam who, in the name of the principles of the Enlightenment, seek to muzzle its critics while at the same time demanding the right to chastise and criticize other religions. These developments, argues Bruckner, are counter-productive for Western democracies as they struggle with the twin challenges of immigration and terrorism. The return of religion in those democracies must not be equated with the defence of fanaticism, and the right to religious freedom must go hand in hand with freedom of expression, an openness to criticism, and a rejection of all forms of extremism. There are already more than enough forms of racism; there is no need to imagine more. While all violence directed against Muslims is to be strongly condemned and punished, defining these acts as 'Islamophobic' rather than criminal does more to damage Islam and weaken the position of Muslims than to strengthen them.

Feasting Our Eyes - Laura Lindenfeld 2016-11-29

Big Night (1996), Ratatouille (2007), and Julie and Julia (2009) are more than films about food—they serve a political purpose. In the kitchen, around the table, and in the dining room, these films use cooking and eating to explore such themes as ideological pluralism, ethnic and racial acceptance, gender equality, and class flexibility—but not as progressively as you might think. Feasting Our Eyes takes a second look at these and other modern American food films to emphasize their conventional approaches to nation, gender, race, sexuality, and social status. Devoured visually and emotionally, these films are particularly effective defenders of the status quo. Feasting Our Eyes looks at Hollywood films and independent cinema, documentaries and docufictions, from the 1990s to today and frankly assesses their commitment to racial diversity, tolerance, and liberal political ideas. Laura Lindenfeld and Fabio Parasecoli find women and people of color continue to be treated as objects of consumption even in these modern works and, despite their progressive veneer, American food films often mask a conservative politics that makes commercial success more likely. A major force in mainstream entertainment, American food films shape our sense of who belongs, who has a voice, and who has opportunities in American society. They facilitate the virtual consumption of traditional notions of identity and citizenship, reworking and reinforcing ingrained ideas of power.

Women Embracing Islam -

Karin van Nieuwkerk

2006-08-01

Many Westerners view Islam as a religion that restricts and subordinates women in both private and public life. Yet a surprising number of women in Western Europe and America are converting to Islam. What attracts these women to a belief system that is markedly different from both Western Christianity and Western secularism? What benefits do they gain by converting, and what are the costs? How do Western women converts live their new Islamic faith, and how does their conversion affect their families and communities? How do women converts transmit Islamic values to their children? These are some of the questions that Women Embracing Islam seeks to answer. In this vanguard study of gender and conversion to Islam, leading historians, sociologists, anthropologists, and theologians investigate why non-Muslim women in the United States, several European countries, and South Africa are converting to Islam. Drawing on extensive interviews with female converts, the authors explore the life experiences that lead Western women to adopt Islam, as well as the appeal that various forms of Islam, as well as the Nation of Islam, have for women. The authors find that while no single set of factors can explain why Western women are embracing Islamic faith traditions, some common motivations emerge. These include an attraction to Islam's high regard for family and community, its strict moral and ethical standards, and the rationality and spirituality of its theology, as well as a disillusionment with Christianity and with the unrestrained sexuality of so much of Western culture.

The Oxford Handbook of European Islam - Jocelyne Cesari 2015

For centuries, Muslim countries and Europe have engaged one another through theological dialogues, diplomatic missions, political rivalries, and power struggles. In the last thirty years, due in large part to globalization and migration from Islamic countries to the West, what was previously an engagement across national and cultural boundaries has increasingly become an internalized encounter within Europe itself. Questions of the Hijab in schools, freedom of expression in the wake of the Danish Cartoon crisis, and the role of Shari'a have come to the forefront of contemporary European discourse. The Oxford Handbook of European Islam is the first collection to present a comprehensive approach to the multiple and changing ways Islam has been studied across European countries. Parts one to three address the state of knowledge of Islam and Muslims within a selection of European countries, while presenting a critical view of the most up-to-date data specific to each country. These chapters analyze the immigration cycles and policies related to the presence of Muslims, tackling issues such as discrimination, post-colonial identity, adaptation, and assimilation. The thematic chapters, in parts four and five, examine secularism, radicalization, Shari'a, Hijab, and Islamophobia with the goal of synthesizing different national discussion into a more comparative theoretical framework. The Handbook attempts to balance cutting edge assessment with the knowledge that the content itself will eventually be superseded by events. Featuring eighteen newly-commissioned essays by noted scholars in the field, this volume will provide an excellent resource for students and scholars interested in European Studies, immigration, Islamic studies, and the sociology of religion.

Harmless Wrongdoing - Joel Feinberg 1990-05-31

The final volume of Feinberg's four-volume work, The Moral Limits of Criminal Law examines the philosophical basis for the criminalization of so-called "victimless crimes" such as ticket scalping, blackmail, consented-to exploitation of others, commercial fortune telling, and consensual sexual relations.

Power of Reading - Frank Furedi 2015-10-08

Here is a natural companion to Christopher Booker's bestselling The Seven Basic Plots (Continuum) and John Gross's seminal study The Rise and Fall of the Man of Letters (Weidenfeld and Nicolson). The most eminent cultural and social historian Frank Furedi presents an eclectic and entirely original history of reading. The very act of reading and the choice of reading material endow individuals with an identity that possesses great symbolic significance. Already in ancient Rome, Cicero was busy drawing up a hierarchy of different types of readers. Since that time people have been divided into a variety of categories- literates and illiterates, intensive and extensive readers, or vulgo and discreet readers. In the 19th Century, accomplished readers were praised as `men of letters` while their moral opposites were described as `unlettered`. Today distinctions are made between cultural and instrumental readers and scorn is communicated towards the infamous `tabloid reader`. The purpose of this book is to explore the changing meanings attributed to the act of reading. Although it has an historical perspective, the book`s focus is very much on the culture of reading that prevails in the 21st Century. There are numerous texts on the history of literacy (Hoggart), yet there is no publication devoted to the the history of readers and their relationship with wider culture and society. It is thus a fascinating insight into understanding the post-Gutenberg debates about literacy in a multimedia environment with such a strong emphasis on the absorption of information. Taking a cue from George Steiner, Furedi argues vigorously for the restoration of the art of reading- every bit as important as the art of writing.

Extrait de la couverture : "

"Those of us who take intellectual production as a site for politics badly need the kind of profound and sophisticated thinking that went into this collection... The pleasures of this text are rare multiple : it reminds us that critique can be an act of creation and alliance ; it opens up needful conversations ; it establishes the difference between understanding what it means to refer to the global without mistaking it for all that there is." - Wahneema Lubiano, Princeton University."

Immigrazione - Stefano Allievi

2018-01-18T00:00:00+01:00

Le migrazioni ci sono. Sono sempre di più e saranno ancora di più in futuro. Non è più il tempo dei problemi senza risposta: è il momento delle soluzioni. L'immigrazione è un fenomeno strutturale da decenni. Tuttavia è sempre stato affrontato in termini di emergenza, come fosse un fatto episodico. Ma l'estensione, la qualità e la quantità del processo sono tali da esigere una soluzione complessiva al nostro sistema di convivenza che non sottovaluti il malessere diffuso nell'opinione pubblica. Le recenti polemiche intorno al ruolo delle ong nei salvataggi sono l'ultimo degli esempi. Per non dire della crescente xenofobia che rischia di indebolire la coesione sociale del nostro paese. L'immigrazione irregolare, il trafficking (i suoi costi e i suoi morti), i salvataggi, i respingimenti, la gestione dei richiedenti asilo con le sue inefficienze, le forme dell'accoglienza. E ancora, i problemi legati ai rimpatri, alla cittadinanza, alle implicazioni delle diverse appartenenze religiose: è urgente e necessaria una riflessione critica onesta su tutte le questioni che accompagnano le migrazioni attuali, affrontando quelle più spinose, con il coraggio di proposte radicali.

The Fifth Gospel - Mario Pomilio 2014-07-10

Mario Pomilio, author of The Fifth Gospel, was a novelist, editor, and literary critic. The Fifth Gospel tells the story of a search for a message of hope and salvation. Umberto C. Mariani and Alice J. Mariani have translated it into English for the first time.

Why the West Fears Islam - J. Cesari 2013-07-24

Jocelyne Cesari examines the idea that Islam might threaten the core values of the West through testimonies from Muslims in France, Germany, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, and the US. Her book is an unprecedented exploration of Muslim religious and political life based on several years of field work in Europe and in the United States.

Islam, Secularism, and Liberal Democracy - Nader

Hashemi 2009-04-08

Islam's relationship to liberal-democratic politics has emerged as one of the most pressing and contentious issues in international affairs. In Islam, Secularism, and Liberal Democracy, Nader Hashemi challenges the widely held belief among social scientists that religious politics and liberal-democratic development are structurally incompatible. This book argues for a rethinking of democratic theory so that it incorporates the variable of religion in the development of liberal democracy. In the process, it proves that an indigenous theory of Muslim secularism is not only possible, but is a necessary requirement for the advancement of liberal democracy in Muslim societies.

Minorities and Populism - Critical Perspectives from South Asia and Europe - Volker Kaul 2020-02-28

This volume assembles renowned scholars to address, for the first time, the relationship between minorities and populism in South Asia and Europe from a critical perspective. Despite the very different and to some extent opposite historical and political trajectories, there is today a convergence on nationalist affirmation and on majoritarian politics between South Asia and Europe. In India, the Hindu majority rebels against wide-ranging minority rights anchored in the Constitution. In Europe, the refugee crisis and Islamic radicalization bring to the forefront the postcolonial legacy. Despite all rhetoric, there are obvious dangers of majoritarianism. Populist parties are divisive, partisan, disregard minority rights, engage in lynching, social division, stigmatization and exclusion, turning minorities into second-class citizens. There is a profound structural connection between minorities and the current rise of populism in India and Europe. But there remains a deep perplexity and also anxiety: Does the presence of minorities necessarily have to trigger majoritarian policies? Are there no solutions to this dilemma? Many observers considered multicultural policies and affirmative action programs in India as a possible model for Europe to adopt in order to achieve greater integration. But eventually they seem to have failed. Why so? Are multiculturalism and the recognition of differences still options today? On the other hand, most scholars in India typically reject the European model of liberal democracy and secularism as impracticable in India and locate the reason for the current malaise in the west. But is liberal democracy really so bad in dealing with pluralism? This volume, collecting a selection of the Reset DOC Venice-Padua-Delhi dialogue series, is going to answer two fundamental questions. First, what precisely is the nexus between minorities and populism in South Asia and Europe? Starting from those case studies, the authors will also draw some general theoretical inferences about the nature of populism. Secondly, given the dangers of populism for minorities, the volume will look for the most adequate and feasible solutions.

Muslims in Western Europe

- Jørgen S. Nielsen 1995

Nielsen describes the history of early European Muslims and outlines the causes and courses of twentieth-century Muslim immigration. Explaining how Muslim communities have developed in individual countries, the book examines their origins, their present-day ethnic composition, organizational patterns, and the political, legal and cultural contexts in which they exist. The book also provides a comparative consideration of issues common to Muslims in all Western European countries, namely the role of the family, and questions of worship, education, and religious thought. In the third edition, all country-related chapters have been substantially updated. A new chapter has also been added on southern Europe, where the maturity of a new generation has seen moves toward political integration.

Fear of Muslims? - Douglas Pratt 2016-05-26

This book takes a sober, evidenced-based look at the contemporary phenomenon of Islamophobia in both 'old-world' Europe, and the 'new-world' of America and Australia, and Southeast Asia. It includes theoretical and conceptual discussions about what Islamophobia is, how it manifests, and how it can be addressed, together with historical analysis, applied research and case-study chapters, considering the reality that manifests as a fear of Muslims. Anxiety about the world's second largest religion manifests as prejudice, discrimination and vilification and, in extreme cases, violence and murder. The real and perceived problems of the relationship between Islam and the West contribute to the phenomenon of Islamophobia. This is a unique, multi-disciplinary work, with authors approaching the topic from a number of academic disciplines and from different religious and national backgrounds, providing for a greater appreciation of the complexity and diversity of Islamophobia. This multicultural and multi-religious approach undergirds the valuable insights the volume provides. This book will be of interest to all concerned with the phenomenon of Islamophobia, and especially researchers and students in the social sciences, as well as scholars with a specific interest in Muslims living as minorities in the West. Also, those working in political science, international relations, sociology, religious studies and other fields will all find it of value.

Debating Islam - Samuel M. Behloul 2014-03-31

Conspicuously, Islam has become a key concern in most European societies with respect to issues of immigration, integration, identity, values and inland security. As the mere presence of Muslim minorities fails to explain these debates convincingly, new questions need to be asked: How did »Islam« become a topic? Who takes part in the debates? How do these debates influence both individual as well as collective »self-images« and »image of others«? Introducing Switzerland as an under-researched object of study to the academic discourse on Islam in Europe, this volume offers a fresh perspective on the objective by putting recent case studies from diverse national contexts into comparative perspective.

Routledge Handbook of Islam in the West - Roberto Tottoli 2014-09-19

Islam has long been a part of the West in terms of religion, culture, politics and society. Discussing this interaction from al-Andalus to the present, this Handbook explores the influence Islam has had, and continues to exert; particularly its impact on host societies, culture and politics. Highlighting specific themes and topics in history and culture, chapters cover: European paradigms Muslims in the Americas Cultural interactions Islamic cultural contributions to the Western world Western contributions to Islam Providing a sound historical background, from which a nuanced overview of Islam and Western society can be built, the Routledge Handbook of Islam in the West brings to the fore specific themes and topics that have generated both reciprocal influence, and conflict. Presenting readers with a range of perspectives from scholars based in Europe, the US, and the Middle East, this Handbook challenges perceptions on both western and Muslim sides and will be an invaluable resource for policymakers and academics with an interest in the History of Islam, Religion and the contemporary relationship between Islam and the West.

Chi diffama l'Islam - Romano Bettini 2019-05-07

L'Autore riprende la sua tesi di un Islam come religione ibrida, cioè politicamente impegnata nella sua fede "imperialistica", approfondendone tre temi: le migrazioni in corso verso l'Occidente, le diffamazioni di cui l'Islam sarebbe vittima e la persistente non separazione tra religione e stato

Muslim Networks and Transnational Communities in and Across Europe - Stefano Allievi 2003

This collection of twelve papers provides case studies and thematic reflections on the growing transnational networking of European Muslims and their involvement with contemporary global Islam. The volume pays particular attention to the mechanisms and significance of this phenomenon.

Islam in Europe - Jack Goody 2013-05-08

This vigorously argued book reveals the central role that Islam has played in European history. Following the movement of people, culture and religion from East to West, Goody breaks down the perceived opposition between Islam and Europe, showing Islam to be a part of Europe's past and present. In an historical analysis of religious warfare and forced migration, Goody examines our understanding of legitimate violence, ethnic cleansing and terrorism. His comparative perspective offers important and illuminating insights into current political problems and conflicts. Goody traces three routes of Islam into Europe, following the Arab through North Africa, Spain and Mediterranean Europe; the Turk through Greece and the Balkans; and the Mongol through Southern Russia to Poland and Lithuania. Each thrust made its mark on Europe in terms of population and culture. Yet this was not merely a military impact: especially in Spain, but elsewhere too, Europe was substantially modified by this contact. Today it takes the form of some eleven million immigrants, not to speak of the possible incorporation of further millions through Bosnia, Albania and Turkey.

Producing Islamic Knowledge - Martin van Bruinessen
2013-06-17

How do Muslims in Europe acquire discursive and practical knowledge of Islam? How are conceptions of Islamic beliefs, values and practices transmitted and how do they change? Who are the authorities on these issues that Muslims listen to? How do new Muslim discourses emerge in response to the European context? This book addresses the broader question of how Islamic knowledge (defined as what Muslims hold to be correct Islamic beliefs and practices) is being produced and reproduced in West European contexts by looking at specific settings, institutions and religious authorities. Chapters examine in depth four key areas relating to the production and reproduction of Islamic knowledge: authoritative answers in response to explicit questions in the form of fatwas. the mosque and mosque association as the setting of much formal and informal transmission of Islamic knowledge. the role of Muslim intellectuals in articulating alternative Muslim discourses. higher Islamic education in Europe and the training of imams and other religious functionaries. Featuring contributions from leading sociologists and anthropologists, the book presents the findings of empirical research in these issues from a range of European countries such as France, Italy, the Netherlands and Great Britain. As such it has a broad appeal, and will be of great interest to students and scholars of Islamic studies, anthropology, sociology and religion.

The Ottoman Road to War in 1914 - Mustafa Aksakal

2008-12-11

Why did the Ottoman Empire enter the First World War in late October 1914, months after the war's devastations had become clear? Were its leaders 'simple-minded,' 'below-average' individuals, as the doyen of Turkish diplomatic history has argued? Or, as others have claimed, did the Ottomans enter the war because War Minister Enver Pasha, dictating Ottoman decisions, was in thrall to the Germans and to his own expansionist dreams? Based on previously untapped Ottoman and European sources, Mustafa Aksakal's dramatic study challenges this consensus. It demonstrates that responsibility went far beyond Enver, that the road to war was paved by the demands of a politically interested public, and that the Ottoman leadership sought the German alliance as the only way out of a web of international threats and domestic insecurities, opting for an escape whose catastrophic consequences for the empire and seismic impact on the Middle East are felt even today.

Altri femminismi - AA. VV.

2020-10-10T00:00:00+02:00

Il volume pone al centro i sistemi di pensiero e le pratiche politiche che il femminismo ha assunto con l'irruzione di nuovi soggetti, nell'incontro con altri movimenti e categorie di analisi e di fronte alle emergenze del mondo contemporaneo, aggiornando la ricerca con l'obiettivo di analizzare le problematiche dei femminismi contemporanei che appaiono più urgenti. Violenza e riproduzione, trasformazioni del lavoro e immigrazione, rapporto con il lesbismo e emergere del soggetto trans, confronto con l'industria del sesso e impatto con l'Islam, fino alla riflessione sul multiculturalismo nel mondo post-coloniale. Partendo da questi temi le autrici raccolgono la sfida che la complessità del presente pone alla storia e alla tradizione del pensiero femminile e alle pratiche politiche che lo hanno accompagnato. Questo lavoro non può e non vuole essere l'ultima parola su questi temi, divenuti di recente più ampi e controversi, ma si pone come strumento utile per affrontare la fitta trama del presente, nel momento in cui le pratiche femministe si rinnovano.

Islam in Europe - Ceri Peach
2016-07-27

The twelve million Muslims living in western and eastern (non-CIS) Europe are confronted with the combined, localised effects of xenophobia, nationalism, an historical stigma attached to Islam and a contemporary fear of the 'global Islamic threat'. In resistance, a variety of Muslim groups throughout Europe have developed a 'politics of religion and community' calling for equal treatment of Muslim minorities in the public sphere. This volume provides insights into these groups and activities, their histories, ideologies, organizations and modes of representation.

Il burkini come metafora. Conflitti simbolici sull'islam in Europa - Stefano Allievi 2017

Harm to Others - Joel
Feinberg 1984-07-05

This first volume in the four-volume series The Moral Limits of the Criminal Law focuses on the "harm principle," the commonsense view that prevention of harm to persons other than the perpetrator is a legitimate purpose of criminal legislation. Feinberg presents a detailed analysis of the concept and definition of harm and applies it to a host of practical and theoretical issues, showing how the harm principle must be interpreted if it is to be a plausible guide to the lawmaker.

European Multiculturalism

Revisited - Alessandro Silj

2013-07-04

European Multiculturalism

Revisited analyses the alleged crises of the main 'models' of multicultural societies experienced by Europe since the end of World War II, based on research conducted by local scholars in the UK, Denmark, the Netherlands, Italy, France and Germany. Each chapter provides an historical account of how the model developed and was implemented in the country in question, followed by an in-depth analysis of the factors that have led to the claim that the model has failed.

The questions being, Did it actually fail? And if it failed was it because of some intrinsic weaknesses or external circumstances? This volume is a groundbreaking contribution to a topic of vital contemporary importance.

Religione e politica - Romano Bettini 2021-12-17

Mentre la relazione tra l'etica e la religione, e tra violenza e politica, sono oggetto di costante interesse, l'interfaccia tra religione e violenza resta uno degli aspetti più problematici del mondo contemporaneo. Questo libro esplora i modi in cui religione e politica si ritrovano a volte insieme, a volte separati nelle diverse religioni e società del mondo. Turner esplora diverse espressioni della secolarizzazione, inclusa la questione della separazione tra chiesa e Stato, che può essere sia compromessa sia accantonata.

Rediscovering the Umma - Ina Merdjanova 2016

In Rediscovering the Umma, Ina Merdjanova discusses the conditions and role of Islam in relation to post-Ottoman nation-building, the communist period, and post-communist developments in the Balkans, focusing in particular on the remarkable transformations experienced by Muslim communities after the end of the Cold War. Amidst multiple structural and cultural transitions, they sought to renegotiate their place and reclaim their Islamic identities in formally secular legal and normative environments, mostly as minorities in majority-Christian societies. The rising political and cultural self-awareness of Muslims in Southeast Europe was frequently expressed by recourse to two frames of reference: the national and the transnational. Despite a certain level of tension between those two perspectives, they were closely intertwined. Moreover, transnational Islamic influences often reinforced Muslim ethnonational identities rather than prompting a radical redefinition of religious allegiances in the key of a "universalist" Islam. Merdjanova explores the transformations of Muslim identities in the region under the influence of national and transnational, domestic and global factors, while also looking at the historical legacies that inform present complexities. Furthermore, she examines the evolving status and roles of Muslim women both in their religious communities and in the larger societies. The book challenges representations of Islam and Muslims as alien to Europe, which overlook the fact that Europe has considerable indigenous Muslim populations in its southeastern part as well as societies that have developed certain models of negotiating cultural differences.

Becoming Hitler - Thomas Weber 2017

Examines Hitler's years in Munich after World War I and his radical transformation from a directionless loner into the leader of Munich's right-wing movement.

Saving the People - Nadia Marzouki 2015-04-01

Critical look at the new wave of right-wing populist movements that are using religion to mobilise people. Western democracies are experiencing a new wave of right-wing populism that seeks to mobilise religion for its own ends. With chapters on the United States, Britain, France, Italy, Austria, the Netherlands, Poland and Israel, Saving the People asks how populist movements have used religion for their own ends and how church leaders react to them. The authors contend that religion is more about belonging than belief for populists, with religious identities and traditions being deployed to define who can and cannot be part of 'the people'. This in turn helps many populists to claim that native Christian communities are being threatened by a creeping and highly aggressive process of Islamisation, with Muslims becoming a key 'enemy of the people'. While Church elites generally condemn this instrumental use of religions, populists take little heed, presenting themselves as the true saviours of the people. The policy implications of this phenomenon are significant, which makes this book all the more timely and relevant to current debate.

Il Burkini come metafora - Stefano Allievi

2017-05-18T00:00:00+02:00

Il burkini è un costume da bagno che veste completamente il corpo della donna, tranne volto, mani e piedi. Ma a partire dalla polemica nata in Francia nell'agosto 2016, come per altre forme di visibilizzazione dell'islam - ad esempio l'hijab (il velo), la moschea, il minareto -, è diventato l'ennesimo simbolo del conflitto culturale che separerebbe islam e occidente. Analizzare il dibattito cui ha dato inizio, prendendo spunto dalle diverse posizioni espresse (laica, femminista, islamica, anti-islamica, fino a quelle di altre comunità religiose), diventa quindi un modo per capire il posto dell'islam nelle società europee. Il burkini diventa così una metafora dell'inclusione (o dell'esclusione), delle sue difficoltà, dei suoi problemi e della capacità che abbiamo di risolverli, delle differenze accettabili e di quelle inaccettabili. A partire da ciò che nasconde: il corpo delle donne.
